HBBH Launches New Website

Vancouver, BC – Hotson Bakker Boniface Haden architects + urbanistes (HBBH) launch new web site, www.hbbharc.com, to staff for initial testing.

The new site captures the essence of the firm and the work of its talented professional team. Its look is clean and modern, with a focus on imagery and easy navigation. “The site allows us to highlight projects as we’ve never been able to before”, said HBBH Principal, Alan Boniface. “In this age of ever-increasing use of information technology, it is important to be competitive in our work and how we promote it. The new site allows us to do that.”

In the initial launch, the site will showcase the firm’s top 30 projects, dating as far back as the 1970’s revitalization of Granville Island and up to the recently completed Quest University in Squamish, BC. Over time, the site will provide information on the hundreds of projects completed by the firm, locally and internationally. The site also offers information on the HBBH team, projects awards and publications.
